Preface

This Cumulative Index commemorates the fiftieth anniversary of the Canadian Society of Church History (CSCH), which was inaugurated in 1960 to promote “studies and encourage research in Church History, with particular attention to Canadian Church History.” During its first twenty-five years, members presented over 175 papers at annual conferences. By the end of its second twenty-five years, this number had increased to more than 575 papers, a total that reflects not only the increased level of interest in Canada in the historical study of the religion in recent decades, but also the vibrant health of the Canadian Society of Church History and the remarkable diversity of interests among its members.

The Cumulative Index is divided into four sections: the first section offers a comprehensive year-by-year outline of papers, panels and symposia sponsored by CSCH at its annual conferences. Much of this information has been gleaned from programs and minutes. The second section offers a comprehensive issue-by-issue outline of papers published by the CSCH. Papers from its annual conferences were first compiled and distributed to its members in 1967, a practice that has continued almost every year thereafter. This annual compilation was titled Canadian Society of Church History Papers. This name continued to be used until the early 1990s, when it was changed to Historical Papers: Canadian Society of Church History. The third section is closely related to the second in that it presents a subject index of all the papers published by CSCH since 1967. The fourth, and final, section is a cumulative list of all papers presented to, and published by, CSCH from 1960 to 2009. This section is arranged in alphabetical order by author.

Compiling this Cumulative Index would not have been possible without the valuable work of Paul Laverdure, who produced a cumulative index of the first twenty-five years in 1985. Laverdure’s index was included as an Appendix in the 1985 issue of the Canadian Society of Church History Papers, and has been incorporated into this Cumulative Index. We present this research tool with the hope that it will highlight the impressive research done by members of the CSCH, and help make this research more accessible to others.
